

REORGANIZATION OF THE STATE GOVERNMENT

HOUSE INTERIM COMMITTEE TO
SUBMIT REPORTIT WOULD CREATE TWELVE
STATE DEPART-
MENTSCREATION OF AN EXECUTIVE COUNCIL IS RECOM-MENDED

(By United Press)
St. Paul, Jan. 27.—The long-delayed report of the house interim committee on re-organization of the state government was ready for submission to the legislature today.

It would create twelve state departments, most of which already exist. It would define and function. Taxation and railroads, warehouses and public utilities would come under two additional departments of government.

Important changes recommended are the creation of an executive council which would resemble in its functions the cabinet of the president. It would be the governor's cabinet and would be composed of the governor, state auditor, secretary of state and state treasurer and attorney-general.

A department of finance would be created under the direct supervision of the governor. Its members would be appointed by the governor and would be subject to his will, with or without cause. It would consist of a budget officer, comptroller and tax commissioner.

Each would receive $6,000 a year, their terms overlapping.

Departments of commerce and conservation would also be created. The department of commerce would be headed by the commissioner of banks and would deal with the commissioner of insurance, the commissioner of securities, who would take the place of the present state securities commission. These commissioners also would be appointed by the governor and could be removed by him, without or with cause.

It would require a constitutional amendment to strip the state auditor of some of his duties in order to create the department of conservation proposed. Several boards and commissions would be brought together under this department. There would be a commissioner of departments and lands, timbers, waters, game and fish and mines and minerals. The commissioner would be appointive and would receive $6,000 a year and could be removed at the will of the governor.

The governor's executive council would comprise the department of administration. Besides the department of commerce, finance and conservation there would be a department of agriculture, highways, education, health, labor and industry and welfare.

Most of these departments are already in existence. They would reorganize, and the commissioner would have control over all agricultural boards and commissions and inspection of registration service.

Few changes are proposed concerning the highway department. The highway commissioner would be its active head.

The department of education would take on new duties, but otherwise would be slightly changed in its functioning.

The health department would be administered as at present but the responsibility would be centralized in one commissioner.

The state industrial commissioner would exercise the powers of chief of that body. The welfare department would assume the duties of the state board of control and other welfare boards.

Washington, Jan. 27.—Denouncing efforts of the senate to throttle "free speech," Senator Thomas J. Hefflin, Alabama Democrat, in open session today condemned secret consideration of the nomination of Attorney General Stone to be associate justice of the supreme court.

"Every nominee for that sacred body should walk through a public hearing in the chamber," said Hefflin. "No one who aspires to that high place should object to having his record discussed in public."

INCOME TAX RULING FOR FAIR DIVORCEESLADY MAY NOT BE MARRIED
DURING ENTIRE TAXABLE
YEARNEW REGULATIONS SENT OUT
TO INTERNAL REVENUE
COLLECTORS

(By United Press)
Washington, Jan. 27.—Frequency of divorces in the United States has forced the national income tax to notice that a man may not be married during the entire taxable year.

Regulations just sent out to internal revenue collectors all over the country for the administration of the new income tax laws contain a new provision, stating that the exemptions will be pro-rated if the status of the taxpayer changes during the year. The method of pro-rating is this: The exemption is the sum of amounts which bear the ratio to the exemptions for each class that the time the taxpayer was in each class bears to the 12 months of the year. The following example is given:

"A, who has been single during the preceding months of 1924, married B on July 20 and lived with her during the balance of the year. If a joint return is made by A and B on a calendar year basis for 1924, the personal exemption will be $2,208. 33, that is 7-12 of $1,000 while single, plus 5-12 of $2,500 for the period during which they were married. If separate returns are made by A and B on a calendar-year basis for 1925, each may claim exemption of $1,104.16, that is, 7-12 of $1,000, plus 1-2 of 5-12 of $2,500. In the latter case, the joint exemption, of 5-12 of $2,500 may be taken either by A or B, or divided between them."

The same ruling applies to persons who become divorced, or whose husbands or wives die during the year. If an individual dies during the year, his executor or administrator in making a return for him is entitled to claim his full exemption according to his status at the time of death.

Husbands and wives, whether married all during 1924 or not, must make a return if their aggregate gross income for year is $5,000. Husbands and wives living together for a period less than the year also must file a return if their aggregate net income is more than the exemptions allowed them. Husbands and wives living together for the entire year also must file a return if their aggregate net income is $2,500—the amount of their joint exemption.

INTERVIEWCONGRESS GIVES EACH OF INDI-
GENTS $50 FOR WINTER
RELIEF

(By United Press)
St. Paul, Jan. 27.—Kabibinoka—the north wind—has spoken.

In comparison the voice of the Great White Father is weak. "I $50. Ugh!"

So spoke Big Bear, patriarch of the Chippewa Indians, of whom there are 13,000 in Minnesota.

The congress of white men in Washington yesterday voted $50 to each of his indigent Indians to "tide them through the winter."

A gift? Hardly. There is something over $6,000,000 in tribal funds held by the purse—Uncle Sam. It is not available to the Indians.

While they hunger and shiver in rude shanties and birchbark tepees the Great White Father—the government personified—extracts a dole from the coffers and feels magnanimous. The Indians have no choice in charity to themselves.

Kabibinoka has spoken long and loud. Winter came earlier, and in the memory of the oldest chiefs there has been none more severe so far. Long since winter supplies have dwindled, yet three months more Kabibinoka will hammer the tepee hangings and swirl his crystal snows through cabin cracks.

Hunt in the senate declared that clam beds are being destroyed and fish are being killed all the way from the Twin Cities to Lake Pepin.

Heavy losses are being sustained as a result of the pollution, the senator charged. He proposed that the Wisconsin legislature appoint a committee and ask the Minnesota legislature to do the same.

FARMERS OPPOSE
CHILD LABOR LAW
IN THE SOUTHWESTBELIEVE SUCH AN AMENDMENT WOULD INTERFERE WITH
AGRICULTUREARKANSAS ONLY STATE IN SEC-TION TO RATIFY THE AMENDMENT

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 27.—The agricultural southwest is against the proposed child labor amendment to the federal constitution largely because such an amendment would interfere, it believes, with the southwest's leading industry—agriculture.

The sentiment among the representatives of the voters is that the federal government should "mind its own business" in affairs concerning whom the citizens of the various sovereign states shall employ in the fields or factories, a survey of the situation shows.

Arkansas Has Acted
Arkansas is the only one of the southwestern states that has ratified the amendment proposal and already there are reports current that a move would be made at the present session of the legislature to repeal the ratification, done at a special session last June.

The Kansas legislature defeated the proposal overwhelmingly only to find that it may have to vote all over again because of technical errors in the title of the bill. However, sentiment is such that another vote undoubtedly will result the same way.

Oklahoma and Wyoming have turned down the proposal and indications are that a similar fate is in store for the amendment in Missouri, Texas and Colorado.

Defeat of the proposal in Oklahoma was caused by a general misunderstanding of the amendment as regards its jurisdiction as well as an apparent distrust of congress, according to Ira M. Finley, president of the Oklahoma Federation of Labor.

Too Indefinite

"Had the measure been more specific in what limitations would be made on child labor it would have received a majority vote," said Finley. This same feeling is apparent in Texas, where unofficial canvasses of Lone Star legislators showed strong sentiment against the amendment because of the effect it would have on labor in cotton fields and also that since other states have rejected it, there must be something objectionable to it.

(By United Press)
New York, Jan. 27.—Vanishing is to the night while an audience of 2,000 awaited her appearance at Carnegie Hall, Ethel Leginska, pianist, was missing today, although sought for 12 hours by hundreds of police throughout the city.

Leginska disappeared from the stoop of a modest brown stone fronted house on the lower west side during a space of 10 minutes in which her secretary sought a taxicab.

When the pianist failed to appear at the hall and her secretary was unable to locate her a general alarm was sent out by the police.

Inquiries at the city's hospitals and search of the neighborhood beyond the Ninth avenue "L" tracks where Leginska made her home while in New York failed to disclose her whereabouts. She had not returned home nor communicated with friends this morning.

No reason for the pianist's disappearance was apparent to her friends, or to her agents, Haensel & Jones.

A short, slight, sallow-complexioned woman of 35, with a plain, mobile countenance topped by a heavy shock of brown bobbed hair, Leginska was not a likely victim for abductors. She was not wealthy, nor had she jewels or money when she vanished.

The immediate suspicion of a press agent's hand in the affair seemed scarcely justified by the facts. Leginska's success as a pianist was established. She had, moreover, a reputation as one of the first women orchestra conductors, as well as being a composer of ability.

Her real name was Ethel Liggins and she was born of English parents at Hull, England.

CHLORINE HELD CURE FOR COUGH

(By United Press)
Washington, Jan. 27.—The use of chlorine for respiratory diseases is sweeping over the country and will soon prove to be a "real boon to humanity," Brig. Gen. Fries, chief of the Chemical Warfare service of the Army declared today. Reports to the War Department, Fries said, showed that cures and improvements were noted in from 65 to 80 per cent of the respiratory cases in which chlorine was used. Fries said chlorine will give a complete cure from whooping cough, if taken early enough. Of the 1,206 cases treated with chlorine here, 447 showed improvement, 391 were cured, 138 failed to respond to treatment, and 230 cases were unheard from.

EMPLOYEES STRIKE IN BOTH HOUSES OF ENGLISH PARLIAMENT

(By United Press)
London, Jan. 27.—More than 1,000 employees of the engineers' section of the office of public works struck today, because of the employment of a non-union worker. The men who walked out include employees of both houses of Parliament, Buckingham palace, Hampton court and Kew gardens.

Knutson Is Trying To Prevent Site Approval

Congressman Harold Knutson has acknowledged receipt of the various telegrams of protest sent him by local civic organizations and states that he is doing all in his power to show the Veterans Bureau what a mistake it would be to accept the report of the T. B. Hospital site committee recently presented. The report which provided for a hospital near Minneapolis, another near Fargo and in addition to one in Dakota, thus satisfying all members of the committee, is meeting with vigorous protests from all parts of the state. Even the Twin City papers have not had the temerity to approve the suggestion.—Bemidji Pioneer.

FARMERS OPPOSE CHILD LABOR LAW IN THE SOUTHWEST

BELIEVE SUCH AN AMENDMENT WOULD INTERFERE WITH AGRICULTURE

ARKANSAS ONLY STATE IN SECTION TO RATIFY THE AMENDMENT

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 27.—The agricultural southwest is against the proposed child labor amendment to the federal constitution largely because such an amendment would interfere, it believes, with the southwest's leading industry—agriculture.

The sentiment among the representatives of the voters is that the federal government should "mind its own business" in affairs concerning whom the citizens of the various sovereign states shall employ in the fields or factories, a survey of the situation shows.

Arkansas Has Acted

Arkansas is the only one of the southwestern states that has ratified the amendment proposal and already there are reports current that a move would be made at the present session of the legislature to repeal the ratification, done at a special session last June.

The Kansas legislature defeated the proposal overwhelmingly only to find that it may have to vote all over again because of technical errors in the title of the bill. However, sentiment is such that another vote undoubtedly will result the same way.

Oklahoma and Wyoming have turned down the proposal and indications are that a similar fate is in store for the amendment in Missouri, Texas and Colorado.

Defeat of the proposal in Oklahoma was caused by a general misunderstanding of the amendment as regards its jurisdiction as well as an apparent distrust of congress, according to Ira M. Finley, president of the Oklahoma Federation of Labor.

Too Indefinite
"Had the measure been more specific in what limitations would be made on child labor it would have received a majority vote," said Finley.

This same feeling is apparent in Texas, where unofficial canvasses of Lone Star legislators showed strong sentiment against the amendment because of the effect it would have on labor in cotton fields and also that since other states have rejected it, there must be something objectionable to it.

AUDIENCE OF 2,000 AWAITED HER IN NEW YORK

HUNDREDS OF POLICE COMB CITY IN SEARCH FOR HER

MUSICIAN NOTED AS BEING ONE OF FIRST WOMEN CONDUCTORS

(By United Press)
New York, Jan. 27.—Vanishing into the night while an audience of 2,000 awaited her appearance at Carnegie Hall, Ethel Leginska, pianist, was missing today, although sought for 12 hours by hundreds of police throughout the city.

Leginska disappeared from the stoop of a modest brown stone fronted house on the lower west side during a space of 10 minutes in which her secretary sought a taxicab.

When the pianist failed to appear at the hall and her secretary was unable to locate her a general alarm was sent out by the police.

Inquiries at the city's hospitals and search of the neighborhood beyond the Ninth avenue "L" tracks where Leginska made her home while in New York failed to disclose her whereabouts. She had not returned home nor communicated with friends this morning.

No reason for the pianist's disappearance was apparent to her friends, or to her agents, Haensel & Jones.

A short, slight, sallow-complexioned woman of 35, with a plain, mobile countenance topped by a heavy shock of brown bobbed hair, Leginska was not a likely victim for abductors. She was not wealthy, nor had she jewels or money when she vanished.

The immediate suspicion of a press agent's hand in the affair seemed scarcely justified by the facts. Leginska's success as a pianist was established. She had, moreover, a reputation as one of the first women orchestra conductors, as well as being a composer of ability.

Her real name was Ethel Liggins and she was born of English parents at Hull, England.

Noted Wild Man From Borneo Was Only a Milwaukee Plumber

(By United Press)
Milwaukee, Jan. 27.—Back in the days of bars with free lunches, ten cent shaves and cheap rents, it was quite the fashion to gaze agog at the famous "wild man of Borneo."

From sophisticated Broadway to Frisco's Barbary coast, the "wild man" paced his cage while the multitudes surged before it, looked upon his hairy body and ugly face. A shrewd Milwaukee showman became wealthy on the dime that poured into his coffers for the sake of a thrill.

Jacob Litt—for that was the showman's name—must have laughed a hearty laugh during the years he exhibited his "wild" man. For now, years after both the "man from the wilds" and the genius for whom he accumulated a fortune have departed this earth, it develops that the much-gazed at freak was none other than a Milwaukee plumber.

A former employer of the "ferocious, man-eating, semi-human, captured in the wilds of the jungles of Borneo after weeks of chase and a battle with ten men which lasted for hours," exposed the story which he has guarded so closely so many years.

Sam Meyers, local hotel manager, tells the story.

"Years ago, when Jake Litt was located in Milwaukee, I took a contract for putting a sewer connection in his dime museum.

"My men were doing some work under the museum. It was a hot day and one of my men, a big burly Slav, was stripped to the waist as he dug away with pick and shovel. Each time he hit the ground with his pick he let out a guttural sound—a grunt.

"Jake happened to go into the basement and immediately became interested in the appearance of the Slav and the noises he made. He was particularly interested in the thick, curly hair that grew all over the man's body and asked him to come upstairs.

"Through an interpreter Litt learned that the man was earning $9 a week and immediately offered him $25 a week without labor.

"The job was accepted and before the week was over 'the ferocious wild man' was established in a huge iron cage with his legs chained to iron balls.

"The fact that hundreds of persons peered into the cage each day, made him nervous and the more nervous he became, the more ferocious he looked.

"The freak proved such an attraction in Litt's museum that he eventually was exhibited from coast to coast.

This Generation May See Return to Knee Breeches

Men, it's just a little more than a century ago since long trousers began to come into fashion. Beau Brummel, the celebrated English society leader, had introduced them a few years before. His daring example had been copied by the "dandies" of the day. But most men held back, especially the conservative "substantial" ones.

They considered long trousers a childish form of masquerade and were afraid they would look ridiculous if they abandoned knee-breeches.

Today it's the other way around. After a century, the pendulum swings and knee breeches are said to be coming back. They are worn by golfers, engineers and other men of the outdoors, and on camping trips and hikes.

Judging by ease and comfort, a great many men—if truth were known—would like to wear "knee pants" all the time.

Why not? Alas, in their community association men have acquired a timidity and sense of shame in anything not conforming to the crowd. Long trousers are "the go"; and it's a brazen male who dares fly in the teeth of convention.—Washington Post.

Literary Difference

Jud Tunkins says the difference between the old drama and the new is that Shakespeare said things ordinary people couldn't think of, while the modern author says what everybody suspects, but is too polite to mention.

Today it's the other way around. After a century, the pendulum swings and knee breeches are said to be coming back. They are worn by golfers, engineers and other men of the outdoors, and on camping trips and hikes.

Judging by ease and comfort, a great many men—if truth were known—would like to wear "knee pants" all the time.

Why not? Alas, in their community association men have acquired a timidity and sense of shame in anything not conforming to the crowd. Long trousers are "the go"; and it's a brazen male who dares fly in the teeth of convention.—Washington Post.

Literary Difference

Jud Tunkins says the difference between the old drama and the new is that Shakespeare said things ordinary people couldn't think of, while the modern author says what everybody suspects, but is too polite to mention.

Three Forty-Two

By WILLIE BRINDLEY

(© by Western Newspaper Union.)

NADINE sized him up at once. You bet. A girl doesn't work three years at the switchboard of an apartment hotel for nothing.

He came in a taxi cab, with two handsome grips, and four trunks followed later. Nadine, from her perch in the lobby, watched him enter the elevator with the taxi driver totting the grips, and when the car had returned, Able Lipwurtz, the elevator boy, winked wisely at Nadine.

"I'll say," he called to her.

"I'll say," Nadine called back. On that very first day, too, as he passed the switchboard on his way out, Three Forty-Two gave himself away some more by half stopping and staring at Nadine. Nadine stared back.

He wore beautiful clothes—no class, but you could tell they cost a lot, and on his left arm a band of crepe.

Pretty soon, things would begin to happen. There would be telephone calls for Three Forty-Two, and these would be interesting to listen in on—guarded calls from ladies who have to be careful. And ladies who have to be careful would alight from taxicabs and saunter in and enter the elevator in the most casual sort of way, and get off at the third floor looking that innocent.

Meanwhile, he spoke pleasantly every morning to Nadine, as he passed out, and again as he returned from his day at whatever it was that occupied him. And Nadine spoke pleasantly to Three Forty-Two. On the third day he gave Able Lipwurtz a dollar.

"Sure, a dollar's all right," Able told Nadine, "but a dollar ain't anything to make a guy blind. For five dollars, maybe, I'd go part blind, and for twenty dollars I couldn't see a thing."

"I'll say," said Nadine, and smiled at him.

On the fourth day, on his way out, he stopped and had Nadine get a number for him, stepping into the booth to talk, and gave her a dollar bill and one of those "seen-you-somewhere" looks.

There was nothing in the telephone conversation. Just an appointment with a lawyer. Able Lipwurtz, leaving his cage to talk to Nadine, which is strictly against the rules, reported nothing doing in his department either.

"But he thinks you're the flea's crutch all right. Maybe he's going to do a little home prospecting. Flowers will be about his speed. And when he does, I'll say."

"I'll say a plenty if he does, I'll say. I beg your pardon, madam; I answered the moment the light showed."

But nothing happened just yet, not for several days. Then, on a rainy morning, Three Forty-Two came down late and looking a bit of all in. He clomped over to his desk with his stiff-kneed, wooden soldier walk, and opened his mouth to speak, then shook his head and turned and clomped out.

"What do you make of that?" called Nadine to Able.

"Getting warm," Able called back. "Getting warm, I'll say."

"And he'd better look out, I'll say. I am trying to get your number, madam."

And then, an hour later, it happened. Three Forty-Two came back, bearing in his arms a great long green cardboard box, which could contain nothing but flowers. And even as he approached, Nadine could see that there was a note tied to the cord which bound the bundle.

He clomped up to the telephone desk, laid the package on the rail, gave Nadine one of those "seen-you-somewhere" looks and hurried over to the elevator.

"Up," he ordered querulously, so that Able Lipwurtz, although racked with curiosity, must obey.

Nadine tore the note from the string that held it, ran a finger under the flap, shucked out the contents. There was a note, and a brand new hundred-dollar bill.

In a mounting rage she glanced at the note.

"My dear," it started, "you are so beautiful and sweet that—"

The tremble scrawl had come to the bottom of the page, and without waiting to turn the sheet Nadine jabbed a plug into Three Forty-Two. Then something made her pause, and she read on before she rang:

"You remind me constantly of my daughter. I am so utterly alone now that she has gone, and today would have been her birthday. Always on her birthday I gave her flowers and a sum of money. Keep these, I beg you—"

She read no more, but rang Three Forty-Two.

"Oh, I'm so sorry, I'm so sorry," she cried. "I didn't know, and I thought—but I'm not sweet and beautiful. I'm a bad, hateful girl, but if there's anything I can do."

She turned from the dangling transmitter, choked, pulled the plug. After a long while she looked up from the note. Able Lipwurtz stood by the rail, elbow on it, leering.

"I'll say," said Able.

Nadine snapped at him:

"I'll say, I'll say, I'll say. Is that all you can say—I'll say? Get back to your cage in a hurry or what I'll say to the manager will be plenty. A person'd think that in maybe a hundred years more you'd get so you could tell a gentleman when you saw one."

Madagascar Once Home
of Enormous Reptiles

It is a singular fact that, barring the wild cattle and the crocodiles, the great African island (Madagascar) is wholly destitute of big game. Yet it teems with animal life in its lesser forms, including such curious animals as the aye-aye, one of the most remarkable creatures known; 39 varieties of lemurs; a ferocious member of the civet family, which looks like an enormous weasel; and a wild dog which appears to be a cross between a coyote, a jackal and a dingo.

But Madagascar has not always lacked large animals, as its fossil remains attest, for in ages past it was the habitat of enormous terrestrial lizards 50 feet in length, and of the great wingless bird, the aepyornis, twice the size of an ostrich.

The eggs of the aepyornis, some of which are 40 inches in circumference, are still frequently found in the neighborhood of Fort Dauphin, at the southern end of the island, where the natives use them for carrying water.—E. Alexander Powell in the Century Magazine.

Hardy Redwood

Nature has endowed the giant redwoods with a natural preservation which protects the timber against decay and rot indefinitely for centuries, in fact after the trees have fallen or been cut down. Trees known to have been blown over in the woods long before the discovery of America, and which have lain exposed to the elements ever since, have been found to be in splendid condition and capable of use as commercial timber.

where a fallen tree was found underneath another big redwood that had grown astraddle the uprooted giant, but when the standing tree was cut its rings showed it to be nearly 1,000 years old.

This meant that the uprooted tree had been down for nearly 1,000 years. The rings of the fallen tree showed it to be about 600 years old when it fell, yet the log was sound and healthy.—Kreolite News.

THE CLEAN HEART

THE CRUELITIES OF LIFE

A Great Story of Love and Thrills, by the Author of "If Winter Comes." A Picture for Mother,

Reviewers Everywhere Lavish in Praise

NEW YORK TIMES

The picturization of A. S. M. Hutchinson's novel "The Clean Heart," which is being exhibited at the Rialto this week, is a surprisingly stirring piece of work, quite different from the ordinary run of pictures.

Percy Marmont, who acquitted himself with high honors as Mark Sabre in the film version of Mr. Hutchinson's "If Winter Comes," delivers an even more remarkable performance as the weird Wriford in this pictorial effort. Although Mr. Marmont has a tremendous task in "The Clean Heart," he never shows a scintilla of waning interest in his characterization.

By REGINA CANNON

Marguerite de la Motte, as Essie, is the picture's bright spot. Her fresh prettiness and spontaneous gaiety are gleaming lights in the gloomy man's morbid existence. Her love of life and desire to have a "young man for herself" lend a comedy touch to the sometimes heavily dramatic sequences of the picture.

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Far from being the conventional mush and trash, "The Clean Heart" is one of the most charming and unusual pictures it has been my good luck to see in many a day. I cannot see how anyone could improve on J. Stuart Blackton's production, which is so good that I am going to pass it by without one unfavorable comment.

It is seldom that we can give such unstinted praise to a picture which has reached us unsung and unheralded.

By HERBERT CROOKER

Miss de la Motte, by the way, gives us an admirable portrayal of the polyantha heroine.

The story is filled with highlights and the suspense does not let down for a moment. It is a stirring sequence, these few moments in the cave, with the stormy sea gradually surging in.

"THE CLEAN HEART," KARLTON, PHILADELPHIA

Inquirer: "This film adaptation of A. S. M. Hutchinson's novel

proved to be one of the most engrossing and thoroughly praiseworthy pictures seen for some time.

NEW YORK AMERICAN

"The Clean Heart," a masterpiece of perfect film work, now at the Rialto

During our screen career we have had two delightful surprises. The first was when we saw William Fox's film version of "If Winter Comes" and the second was yesterday, when we saw Vitagraph's film version of "The Clean Heart." When "If Winter Comes" was produced we had not yet seen "A Woman of Paris" or "The Marriage Circle," and we thought the A. S. M. Hutchinson story the most beautifully done of any picture we had seen. Now, we can truthfully say, that "The Clean Heart" is just as good.

of Enormous Reptiles

It is a singular fact that, barring the wild cattle and the crocodiles, the great African island (Madagascar) is wholly destitute of big game. Yet it teems with animal life in its lesser forms, including such curious animals as the aye-aye, one of the most remarkable creatures known; 39 varieties of lemurs; a ferocious member of the civet family, which looks like an enormous weasel; and a wild dog which appears to be a cross between a coyote, a jackal and a dingo.

But Madagascar has not always lacked large animals, as its fossil remains attest, for in ages past it was the habitat of enormous terrestrial lizards 50 feet in length, and of the great wingless bird, the neopyornis, twice the size of an ostrich.

The eggs of the neopyornis, some of which are 40 inches in circumference, are still frequently found in the neighborhood of Fort Dauphin, at the southern end of the island, where the natives use them for carrying water.—E. Alexander Powell in the Century Magazine.

Hardy Redwood

Nature has endowed the giant redwoods with a natural preservation which protects the timber against decay and rot indefinitely for centuries, in fact after the trees have fallen or been cut down. Trees known to have been blown over in the woods long before the discovery of America, and which have lain exposed to the elements ever since, have been found to be in splendid condition and capable of use as commercial timber.

Reviewers Everywhere Lavish in Praise

NEW YORK TIMES

The picturization of A. S. M. Hutchinson's novel "The Clean Heart," which is being exhibited at the Rialto this week, is a surprisingly stirring piece of work, quite different from the ordinary run of pictures.

Percy Marmont, who acquitted himself with high honors as Mark Sabre in the film version of Mr. Hutchinson's "If Winter Comes," delivers an even more remarkable performance as the weird Weyford in this pictorial effort. Although Mr. Marmont has a tremendous task in "The Clean Heart," he never shows a scintilla of waning interest in his characterization.

By REGINA CANNON

Marguerite de la Motte, as Essie, is the picture's bright spot. Her fresh prettiness and spontaneous gaiety are gleaming lights in the gloomy man's morbid existence. Her love of life and desire to have a "young man for herself" lend a comedy touch to the sometimes heavily dramatic sequences of the picture.

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Far from being the conventional mush and trash, "The Clean Heart" is one of the most charming and unusual pictures it has been my good luck to see in many a day. I cannot see how anyone could improve on J. Stuart Blackton's production, which is so good that I am going to pass it by without one unfavorable comment.

It is seldom that we can give such unstinted praise to a picture which has reached us unsung and unheralded.

By HERBERT CROOKER

Miss de la Motte, by the way, gives us an admirable portrayal of the polyantha heroine.

The story is filled with highlights and the suspense does not let down for a moment. It is a stirring sequence, these few moments in the cave, with the stormy sea gradually surging in.

"THE CLEAN HEART," KARLTON, PHILADELPHIA

Inquirer: "This film adaptation of A. S. M. Hutchinson's novel

proved to be one of the most engrossing and thoroughly praiseworthy pictures seen for some time.

NEW YORK AMERICAN

"The Clean Heart," a Masterpiece of Perfect Film Work, Now at the Rialto

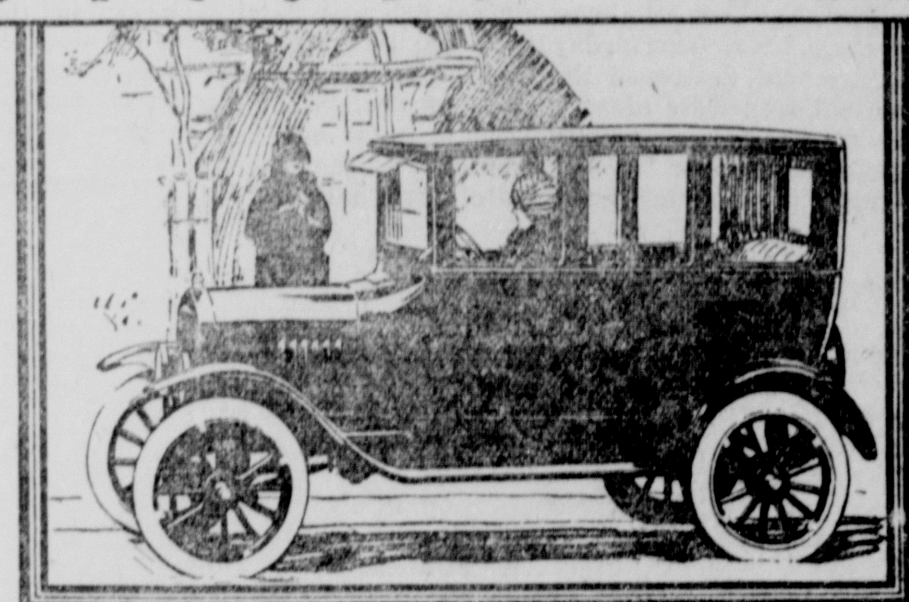

During our screen career we have had two delightful surprises. The first was when we saw William Fox's film version of "If Winter Comes" and the second was yesterday, when we saw Vitagraph's film version of "The Clean Heart." When "If Winter Comes" was produced we had not yet seen "A Woman of Paris" or "The Marriage Circle," and we thought the A. S. M. Hutchinson story the most beautifully done of any picture we had seen. Now, we can truthfully say, that "The Clean Heart" is just as good.

A NEW ANGLE ON THE DEVIL

THE devil is generally blamed for a lot of trouble in this world and ministers as a rule inveigh against him, but Dr. W. T. McElveen, pastor of the Plymouth Congregational church in St. Paul, takes a new view.

It was revealed in the opening sentences of his sermon when he stated that the very first step that God took in building man up in intelligent goodness was to let the devil in on him.

Further quotations from the sermon reveal the argument used by the preacher in his novel exposition of the arch enemy of mankind. "The Bible shows no interest in man until man becomes capable of doing either right or wrong. Evil serves a purpose. It is better to be a man who can sin than a sheep that cannot sin. Many persons charge the devil with responsibility which rightly belongs to themselves," the speaker said.

"The reformed drunkard tells his associates at the gospel meeting 'the devil told me not to come to this meeting tonight.' But that reformed drunkard never spoke with the devil. He was disinclined to go to the meeting and he meanly attributed his disinclination to the devil. Some preachers talk as if the devil invented certain dances and laid the cornerstone of certain theaters, but that is charging the devil with what men did. Even if the devil induced me to sin it is that I do the sinning and not the devil."

GERALD V. BARRON SCORES

DUE largely to the efforts of Gerald V. Barron, former Brainerd boy and former Commander of the Minnesota department of the American Legion, one Arthur Lorenz, former editor of the Illinois Staats Zeitung, a German language newspaper published in Chicago, has been brought to the bar of justice and sentenced to serve six months in the house of correction and to pay a fine of $1 for criminal libel against the American Legion, as per decision just rendered by the appellate court.

The whole trouble in which Lorenz became enmeshed started when he published an editorial referring to Legion members as "tramps, vagabonds and bums." The appellate court affirmed the verdict of the criminal court of two years ago, holding that the editorial was "a deliberate attempt to impeach the honesty and reputation of the American Legion."

The national office of the American Legion at Indianapolis sent its judge-advocate, Robert Adams, to represent it at the trial.

SUPER-HEATING

COLD weather calls for more fuel to heat the home. Parents should exercise careful supervision and see that in the efforts to keep a home warm, the heating apparatus is not strained to the point that it sets fire to the building.

Since the death of five small children in the fire at a home near Elk River, there has been an almost similar fire near Bemidji where two lost their lives. Yesterday four small children lost their lives in a fire that destroyed the home of a farmer near Joplin, Mo. The children were alone in the home when the fire broke out. The mother was chopping wood near by and later went to the home of a neighbor and knew nothing of the tragedy until the house was in ashes and the brood of little ones burned to a cinder.

EDITORS COMMEND ECONOMY PROGRAM

THE Northern Minnesota Editorial association, at its recent convention in Little Falls, adopted resolutions commending the economy program of Governor Christianson and advocated a two cent tax on gasoline. A protest was launched against any reduction of the motor vehicle license fee.

They endorsed the refundment plan of Commissioner Babcock, protested against the location of the veterans' tubercular hospital in Minneapolis and said Northern Minnesota was the ideal place for it.

They objected to the government doing private printing. Citizens of Little Falls were thanked for their generous hospitality.

THE DISPATCH always likes to "boost," but the recent request made by a subscriber is beyond reason. The lady sent in a column from Chelan, Washington, glorifying that state and its resources and trade and industries, etc. Washington state papers on the coast are running such laudatory articles during "Washington Month" and asking that their citizens incorporate the facts in letters to their friends in the East or to the editor of the paper in the city in which they formerly lived.

LEGISLATURES of South Dakota, Kansas and Delaware have voted overwhelmingly against the proposed "child labor" amendment. Ohio also seems to be against ratification.

THE straight and narrow path may be a little harder to travel, says the Fairmont Sentinel, but there is never any delay because of traffic jams.

IT is bad enough to have three or four 'ays' siege of the hiccoughs. Scientists now say the hiccoughs may be followed by sleeping sickness.

CROSBY entertains the State Firemen's convention this summer. The town has worked two years accumulating an adequate convention fund.

GOVERNOR CHRISTIANSON'S economy ax is no mere paper affair. He has swung it today and demands a $5,000,000 cut in the state budget.

THE U. S. Senate had a "secret" debate behind closed doors the other day and was astonished to read the details in the newspapers.

THE Bemidji Musical Art club is putting on a musical memory contest, Bemidji school children participating.

The report said that unless this is done there will be no money left for further highway improvement within a few years.

Responsibility for the principle and interest on $33,500,000 county road bonds has been assumed by the senate, the report said, declaring that interest on sinking fund requirements on these bonds amounted to $4,500,000 annually. In addition highway maintenance alone cost $4,000,000 annually and if there is to be any new construction more than the $5,000,000 raised by vehicle taxes must be had.

BRAINERD 19, AITKIN, 13; SEVENTH STRAIGHT VICTORY

B. H. S. continued its string of victories last Friday night, when they defeated the fast Aitkin quint at the High School Gymnasium by a score of 19 to 13.

Aitkin came to Brainerd with the idea of making their eighth consecutive victory, and although they fought hard, they could not solve Brainerd's attack; their own being smothered by Brainerd's defense to a great extent.

Brainerd started the game with its usual dash and power, maintaining it throughout the first half, but slowed considerably in the second half, making the game in that period less interesting so far as teamwork was concerned.

There were only 2 field goals made in the first half, one by Avery of Brainerd and the other by Kast of Aitkin, the rest of the points being made on free throws. The score at the end of the half was 9 to 5 in Brainerd's favor.

In the second half Engbretson caged a goal followed by two from Rosenberg and one from Opsahl. Aitkin counted two more in this period, both by Larson, substitute forward. Brainerd, by defeating Aitkin, Little Falls, Crosby-Ironton and Staples has earned for herself an enviable record in the district, and by keeping the good work up, bids fair to represent this district at the state tournament.

The Line-up

Brainerd	Aitkin
Engbretson	Holden
Avery	Olson
Whitlock	Geer
Dieckhaus	Davis
Tribun	Kash

Substitutes: For Brainerd—Rosenberg for Avery; Opsahl for Whitlock, Lorenz for Dieckhaus.

For Aitkin—Larson for Olson, Hanson for Larson.

Referee—Smith of Bemidji.
Scorer—Schaumburg of Brainerd.

Girls' Game

The Brainerd girls have won their second victory by swamping the Riverton quint by a score of 48 to 2.

The game was swift and clean throughout. Riverton drew first blood when Esther Sunde made a free throw; a few seconds later a field goal was caged by Edna Turner. After this play our girls brightened up, and started rolling them in.

Much credit is due Iva Trask, who plays jumping center, for her remarkable skill in receiving and passing the ball. She, with Helen Beggs as running center, played a hard-fought game, because Riverton centers were pretty fast, so it kept them going most of the time.

Edna Turner seemed to have a wonderful aim for the basket because she caged 20 field goals. Miriam Michael played a good game of team work with Edna and she increased the score by making two field goals. Gladys Reuter and Alta Storm played a swift game as guards and they proved to be the stone wall for the Riverton girls.

During the last half our subs were put in and they all played well. Grace Alzant went in as running center, while Helen Beggs took Miriam Michael's place as forward and she caged two field goals which helped to pile up the score. Sylvia Foster went in as guard in Alta Storm's place.

Riverton had a fairly fast team but they seemed lost when our players had the ball, although they put up a good fight and they took their defeat as good sports do. Scoring for Riverton was done by Esther Sunde and Margaret Ahear, who both succeeded in making a free throw. Their subs were: Irene Hanson for M. Slaughter, and M. Ahear for Gertrude Sunde and Gertrude Sunde for Ruth McMahon.

The line-up was as follows:
Brainerd
E. Turner
M. Michael
I. Trask
H. Beggs
G. Reuter, Capt.
A. Storm
Referees were: Miss Larsen of Brainerd the first half, and Mrs. Hjelm of Riverton the last half.

Brainerd vs. Bemidji

Last Tuesday night, Brainerd met its first defeat of the basketball season when the team made the trip to Bemidji to meet the team of that town. Although they outplayed their opponents at every stage of the game, even on a strange floor, they were unable to make their shots count when they were needed most.

During the first three quarters of the game Brainerd showed strong offensive power, Bemidji continually changing its lineup in a futile effort to stop the onrush of the local team. Then with a lead of 13-2 at the beginning of the fourth quarter, Brainerd, thinking the game to be clinched, tried stalling tactics, but not being very experienced in these methods, allowed Bemidji to win in the last quarter by making 13 points to the locals' 0.

It was a heartbreaking end of a wonderful start.

This game, however, does not count in Brainerd's standing in this district as these games with Bemidji were only put in to fill open dates.

The Line-up

Brainerd	Bemidji
Engbretson	Simons
Avery	Stapleton
Whitlock	Hickerson
Dieckhaus	Wilson
Tribun	Sullivan

Substitutes for Brainerd—Rosenberg for Avery; Opsahl for Whitlock, Lorenz for Dieckhaus.

For Bemidji—Stapleton for Simons; Aldrich for Stapleton; Hanson for Aldrich; Kink for Wilson; Hanson for Hickerson.

Field goals—Engbretson 3; Whitlock 1; Simons 1; Aldrich 2; Hanson 1.

Foul goals—Engbretson 3; Whitlock 2; Simons 3; Stapleton 1; Aldrich 1; Hickerson 1; Sullivan 1.

Referee—Halzer of Moorhead.

Here is a shining example of how the basketball girls of B. H. S. faithfully and rigidly adhere to the prescribed girls' rules. Last Tuesday Miriam Michael was a guest at a party where they were having a wonderful time. All were loathe to accompany her home at the comparatively early hour of 10:30. Miriam was firm in her determination to conform to the rules made for her so she called a taxi to take her home. The conveyance arrived in due time but on its departure the wheels of the car stubbornly refused to go, as they were stuck in a deep rut. After many laborious moments, the car was finally extricated from its predicament. Amongst the cheers of the rest of the party the car was off. A few moments later Miriam called up and triumphantly informed them that she had arrived in due time to be in bed at 10:30. Certainly she ought to be rewarded for this conformity to the rules.

Freshmen Meeting

Wednesday at the close of school at 3:30 the Freshmen held a meeting. The minutes were read and accepted after which business was transacted. The Freshmen decided to have a sleigh-ride a week from Saturday.

We hope it will be a nice moonlit night which according to Mr. Krueger's suggestion would be the right thing for a sleigh-ride party.

The refreshments were not decided on but were left to be discussed in the next meeting which will be held in the near future.

We are going to have a long ride for we've planned to go out Sixth street to Fredstroms corner cross over to Thirteenth street and then a few miles out Oak street, then back to the High School where nice warm refreshments will await us.

To Our Boys

What would life be if the world was all girls

The same old dresses and same old curls
So to give us a change God gave us the boys

To be our protectors and make all the noise,
To play all of our games and bring us to fame

I think that the boys have half made school's name.

So here's our opinion, you're right, fine and dandy
So when we girls need you, you'll always be handy.

"DADDY LONG LEGS" SENIOR CLASS PLAY

Freddie Perkins, a rarin' tearin' specimen of an orphan asylum "kid," will surely capture the hearts of everyone. He is all there, especially with "the hole in his pants—that big" and his realistic "cowboy, chasing Indians," which takes such artistic ability and practice. We know.

The other orphans, who seem to be growing out of their "blue-checked gingham," will probably make you shiver in sympathy with them when the dreaded Mrs. Lippett appears on the scene, although the person chosen does not like her part, she is giving us the real thing in acting so be prepared to find this gentle damsel under the snippy exterior of Mrs. Lippett.

Judy, our hero-wine, displays her independence in standing up to Mrs. Lippett.

The trustees of the Orphan Asylum give Freddie some very brilliant (or otherwise) ideas. Just wait!

Miss Prichard, who is usually gentle, becomes fiery in her determination to better the life of all orphans, especially Judy. Yoo Ho!! for a college life and a merry one like Judy's. The witty exchange of small talk between Judy and her unknown "Daddy Long Legs" is enough to bring a flock of smiles to anyone's visage, even if it is usually sour.

The unquenchable Jimmy McBride finds life interesting while Judy is around and later, without her. He is the bane of Mrs. Semple's life and he seems to find her "Land sakes!" and other colloquialisms so entertaining that in his moments of irritability he is heard using the self same expressions.

WEEKLY ESSAY IS

"ON TALKERS"

Talkers, to my mind, are divided into two chief classes, interesting and uninteresting. In my limited experience I have been unfortunate enough to have more to do with the latter class than with the former.

An uninteresting talker may discuss great variety of topics, he may use perfect English, he may be well bred and distinguished in appearance and still be uninteresting. Many people disagree as to what makes such a man uninteresting; some say it is the conceit of the talker; others say it is a "know it all" expression which is always disgusting. I think the main reason is that this kind of talker is made to appear uninteresting by using topics of speech that are disagreeable to his hearers.

A good example of this is a man who is continually talking about himself. Such a person, I believe, is the least welcome in the presence of others than any other that I can think of. Every other kind of person, however degraded he is, is welcome in the presence of the same kind of people that he is.

Interesting persons in direct contrast are made interesting through the use of agreeable topics. To meet a person and then start right off to talk on a topic about which he is interested is a much of an accomplishment as the ability to play a musical instrument. I have yet to see a popular person who was made so through talking about himself or by talking on subjects which are not otherwise interesting.

It is within the power of almost every person to be agreeable in conversation, and by so doing he can make his appearance desirable. Is it not worth the effort to try?—Walter Anderson.

Next week all of the assemblies with the exception of the Senior, will mourn the loss of a few faces, for in passing their semester exams a number of students who have lacked the necessary amount of credits, will be re-instated with their former class-mates. Watch for the results of the Senior initiation in next week's issue.

As soon as the wind abates its violence, As soon as more snow falls and As soon as the full moon again illumines the objects here below, As soon as more dues are paid, The Seniors, too, will have a sleigh-ride party.

WHO'S WHO AT BRAINERD H. S.

Albert Rathert

The Hall of Fame is pretty well cluttered up with busted marble but we aim to place Albert Rathert's name and likeness in said edifice if we have to build an addition. Albert is the typical newspaper man; he looks as though he had bought out a book factory and a paper mill and was doing the trucking himself. He is one of the "energy plus go-getters" you read about in the American Magazine; he's all over the old B. H. S. at the same time.

Of late, however, he has resigned the Editorship of the Brainonian for the more responsible position of ditto of the Annual in an effort to make it a "Bigger and Better" annual and we know under Albert's leadership it can't be anything else but.

The Brainonian has, thus far, been a very successful and worth while publication and Sophie Brending, in whose care it has been given, does not, from what she says, intend to let it fall into decline. Therefore, Albert, you need not worry for the success of the paper. And now, since we are done, let's have the old locomotive.

Lesson by Miss Jorandby

Rah, rah, rah, for Miss Jorandby! She wants a more interested crowd at the basketball games.

In gym she is teaching the game of basketball to every girl. First she gets 'em all lined up on a bleacher and quiet. Then after having several offers of some willing girl who wishes to hold her ball which she intends to use in her demonstration she begins. She places imaginary characters, possessing such names as Turner and Beggs on the floor in their respective positions. She shoots all of the acting, of course. She shoots free throws and pretends passing etc.

After considerable instruction she picks out two teams from the lineup and gets 'em set.

"Whee," goes her whistle and the game is on but the bell rings and all is over.

Who, What and Where

The Honor Roll has been made out again and we find several recruits that haven't at all or very seldom graced its columns. Notably among these is Vivian Gillette who has at last reached the height of her ambition. She hardly condescends to look at us humans anymore and she always appears to be happily treading on air.

Vernon Dieckhaus claims that he too will soon be one of its lucky victims. It will be a notable feat for Dick for he does not intend to come back next year!

The editor-in-chief believes in setting a good example so he was the first of the illustrious Seniors to have his "picture took." Evidently the results were satisfactory for all still seems "serene on the Potomac."

Miss Tornstrom casually brought up the desirability or vice versa of donning caps and gowns as fitting commencement apparel for the graduating class. The two factions of yes and no Seniors immediately put up a fighting front and no doubt as with last year's class who were the originators of the custom in B. H. S. it will be a battle to the finish—if they don't weaken.

Next week all of the assemblies with the exception of the Senior, will mourn the loss of a few faces, for in passing their semester exams a number of students who have lacked the necessary amount of credits, will be re-instated with their former class-mates. Watch for the results of the Senior initiation in next week's issue.

JUNIOR BENEFIT PERFORMANCE MOST SUCCESSFUL IN HISTORY

Report Day

I know that report card day can cause us a lot of grief. For those red blotches on pleasures hang a wreath.

For when Pop reads it carefully, he to the woodshed points

And then unlike gymnasium, he limbers up the joints.

And then a crossword puzzle forms, of how to raise the mark.

Then from within my soul comes a dear voice, listen! Hark.

A talk to a faculty member will help—yes, indeed.

A right good old confession is just the thing that I need.

Then to the faculty I went one day. To learn the method of coping an A

And if a teacher's heart can ever feel, It would have done so with my heart-rending appeal.

And then a resolution to work so hard To just get an A on an old report card.

Now, my friends and classmates, isn't it true

What wonders an old card and a mark can do?

The Sophomores

The Sophomore class will always be, The most famous you'll ever see.

In basket-ball and honor roll Notice we're always at top of the pole.

There's Reuter, Turner, and the rest. They're always there to do their best.

There's Lewis, Trask and Anderson, Among the countless other ones.

The girls and boys of the Sophomore class, Forget their joys so they could pass.

We want to tell the rest of you It pays to work so now—"Please do!"

Of course some students failed, And their dreams also sailed.

But yet they all smiled through We want to ask each of you—"Please do so too."

Dearie me, how time does fly! Half a year has now gone by.

Before our work really began Along comes Mr. mid-year exam.

Then, alas, to our surprise The teachers began to surmise.

We then realized we woke too late, For flunking is now our terrible fate.

BRAINERD 19, AITKIN, 13;

SEVENTH STRAIGHT VICTORY

B. H. S. continued its string of victories last Friday night, when they defeated the fast Aitkin quint at the High School Gymnasium by a score of 19 to 13.

Aitkin came to Brainerd with the idea of making their eighth consecutive victory, and although they fought hard, they could not solve Brainerd's attack; their own being smothered by Brainerd's defense to a great extent.

Brainerd started the game with its usual dash and power, maintaining it throughout the first half, but slowed considerably in the second half, making the game in that period less interesting so far as teamwork was concerned.

There were only 2 field goals made in the first half, one by Avery of Brainerd and the other by Kast of Aitkin, the rest of the points being made on free throws. The score at the end of the half was 9 to 5 in Brainerd's favor.

In the second half Engbretson caged a goal followed by two from Rosenberg and one from Opsahl. Aitkin counted two more in this period, both by Larson, substitute forward. Brainerd, by defeating Aitkin, Little Falls, Crosby-Ironton and Staples has earned for herself an enviable record in the district, and by keeping the good work up, bids fair to represent this district at the state tournament.

The Line-up

Brainerd Aitkin
Engbretson r.f. Holden
Avery l.f. Olson
Whitlock c. Geer
Dieckhaus r.g. Davis
Tribur l.g. Kash
Substitutes: For Brainerd—Rosenberg for Avery; Opsahl for Whitlock, Lorenz for Dieckhaus.

For Aitkin—Larson, for Olson, Hanson for Larson.

Referee—Smith of Bemidji.
Scorer—Schaumburg of Brainerd.

Girls' Game

The Brainerd girls have won their second victory by swamping the Riverton quint by a score of 48 to 2.

The game was swift and clean throughout. Riverton drew first blood when Esther Sunde made a free throw; a few seconds later a field goal was caged by Edna Turner. After this play our girls brightened up, and started rolling them in.

Much credit is due Iva Trask, who plays jumping center, for her remarkable skill in receiving and passing the ball. She, with Helen Beggs as running center, played a hard-fought game, because Riverton centers were pretty fast, so it kept them going most of the time.

Edna Turner seemed to have a wonderful aim for the basket because she caged 20 field goals. Miriam Michael played a good game of team work with Edna and she increased the score by making two field goals. Gladys Reuter and Alta Storm played a swift game as guards and they proved to be the stone wall for the Riverton girls.

During the last half our subs were put in and they all played well. Grace Alzant went in as running center, while Helen Beggs took Miriam Michael's place as forward and she caged two field goals which helped to pile up the score. Sylvia Foster went in as guard in Alta Storm's place.

Riverton had a fairly fast team but they seemed lost when our players had the ball, although they put up a good fight and they took their defeat as good sports do. Scoring for Riverton was done by Esther Sunde and Margaret Abear, who both succeeded in making a free throw. Their subs were: Irene Hanson for M. Slaughter, and M. Abear for Gertrude Sunde and Gertrude Sunde for Ruth McMahon.

The line-up was as follows:
Brainerd Riverton
E. Turner r.f. G. Sunde
M. Michael l.f. E. Sunde, Capt.
I. Trask l.g. R. McMahon
H. Beggs r.g. M. Slaughter
G. Reuter, Capt. l.g. R. Mitter
A. Storm r.g. L. Williams
Referees were: Miss Larsen of Brainerd the first half, and Mrs. Hjelm of Riverton the last half.

Of late, however, he has resigned the Editorship of the Brainerdian for the more responsible position of ditto of the Annual in an effort to make it a "Bigger and Better" annual and we know under Albert's leadership it can't be anything else but.

The Brainerdian has, thus far, been a very successful and worth while publication and Sophie Brending, into whose care it has been given, does not, from what she says, intend to let it fall into decline. Therefore, Albert, you need not worry for the success of the paper. And now, since we are done, let's have the old locomotive.

Lesson by Miss Jorandby

Rah, rah, rah, for Miss Jorandby! She wants a more interested crowd at the basketball games.

In gym she is teaching the game of basketball to every girl. First she gets 'em all lined up on a bleacher and quiet. Then after having several offers of some willing girl who wishes to hold her ball which she intends to use in her demonstration she begins. She places imaginary characters, possessing such names as Turner and Beggs on the floor in their respective positions. She does all of the acting, of course. She shoots free throws and pretends passing etc.

After considerable instruction she picks out two teams from the line-up and gets 'em set.

"Whee," goes her whistle and the game is on but the bell rings and all is over.

Who, What and Where

The Honor Roll has been made out again and we find several recruits that haven't at all or very seldom graced its columns. Notably among these is Vivian Gillette who has at last reached the height of her ambition. She hardly condescends to look at us humans anymore and she always appears to be happily treading on air.

Vernon Dieckhaus claims that he too will soon be one of its lucky victims. It will be a notable feat for Dick for he does not intend to come back next year!

The editor-in-chief believes in setting a good example so he was the first of the illustrious Seniors to have his "picture took." Evidently the results were satisfactory for all still seems "serene on the Potomac."

Miss Tornstrom casually brought up the desirability or vice versa of donning caps and gowns as fitting commencement apparel for the graduating class. The two factions of yes and no Seniors immediately put up a fighting front and no doubt as with last year's class who were the originators of the custom in B. H. S. it will be a battle to the finish—if they don't weaken.

Next week all of the assemblies with the exception of the Senior, will mourn the loss of a few faces, for in passing their semester exams a number of students who have lacked the necessary amount of credits, will be re-instated with their former class-mates. Watch for the results of the Senior initiation in next week's issue.

As soon as the wind abates its violence,

As soon as more snow falls and

As soon as the full moon again illumines the objects here below,

As soon as more dues are paid,

The Seniors, too, will have a sleigh-ride party.

JUNIOR BENEFIT PERFORMANCE

MOST SUCCESSFUL IN HISTORY

Report Day

I know that report card day can cause us a lot of grief. For those red blotches on pleasures hang a wreath. For when Pop reads it carefully, he to the woodshed points. And then unlike gymnasium, he limbers up the joints.

And then a crossword puzzle forms, of how to raise the mark. Then from within my soul comes a dear voice, listen! Hark. A talk to a faculty member will help—yes, indeed.

A right good old confession is just the thing that I need.

Then to the faculty I went one day. To learn the method of coping an A. And if a teacher's heart can ever feel, It would have done so with my heart-rending appeal.

And then a resolution to work so hard To just get an A on an old report card. Now, my friends and classmates, isn't it true? What wonders an old card and a mark can do?

The Sophomores

The Sophomore class will always be, The most famous you'll ever see. In basket-ball and honor roll Notice we're always at top of the pole.

There's Reuter, Turner, and the rest, They're always there to do their best. There's Lewis, Trask and Anderson, Among the countless other ones.

The girls and boys of the Sophomore class, Forgot their joys so they could pass. We want to tell the rest of you It pays to work so now—"Please do!"

Of course some students failed, And their dreams also failed. But yet they all smiled through We want to ask each of you—"Please do so too."

Dearie me, how time does fly! Half a year has now gone by. Before our work really began Along comes Mr. mid-year exam. Then, alas, to our surprise The teachers began to surmise. We then realized we woke too late, For flunking is now our terrible fate.

Faculty Facts

Mr. Krueger

As I hurry by his open door I see him sitting enveloped in the thoughts of his stiff Friday quizzes.

"Let me see," he thinks, "ten questions with three parts to each, ought to keep them from looking around the room for at least thirty minutes. In the mean time, while they are writing I can correct last Friday's papers."

As he sits deeply absorbed in our thrilling Science and Social Problems papers, it is with a great sacrifice that we push our books from us and follow in the paths of honesty.

Although, Mr. Krueger does over-exert himself in composing our exams we owe him much for coaching our victorious team—and he has good taste in ties.

Who can say that the Juniors haven't a license to brag, the record breaking Junior class of 1925?

Never has a Junior class, nay, not even the brilliant one of last year, sold 1,000 tickets for their benefit movie. We have certainly established a precedent for the future Juniors to follow. Our class can boast of three real workers, for Netha Humphrey took first place in the ticket selling contest, having turned in money for 98 tickets, while Sadie Olson and Evelyn Wiesz came second with 92 apiece. We are proud of these girls, and of every member of our class, for everyone did his or her bit, but we are especially proud of and grateful to our adviser, Miss Jorandby, for without her untiring efforts we could have done nothing.

From the many compliments that were heard about "Classmates," we feel confident that everyone enjoyed it, and got his money's worth.

Without the assistance of that wonderful organization, the "High School Orchestra," how could the affair have been a true success? If Miss Rickard could hear all the congratulations and words of praise that are cast in her direction, she would indeed be flattered. The orchestra is improving and becoming more praiseworthy at each performance.

Three cheers for the Orchestra, and the Juniors of 1925!

Who?

Who is the one who cares for us all, Writes out passes and cares for the hall

Who jacks us up when we fall down low

Who keeps our countenances all aglow

Come on you classmates with life and drum

And cheer for our guider, Miss Tornstrom

Relief

For pain—quick

The worst pain people suffer can be relieved at once. Rheumatic pain, soreness, backache, cold in chest, etc. Rub the sore spot with red pepper. Nothing else supplies such concentrated, such penetrating heat. And heat that doesn't hurt.

You feel it instantly. In three minutes that heat penetrates to the depths. Circulation starts, congestion is relieved. The pain and the soreness depart.

People used to use plasters, mustard and liniments. But modern science has found a better way, a quicker, more efficient way, a way without objections.

Don't suffer pains which Red Pepper Rub relieves almost at once. Don't let cold in the chest go neglected. Have this rub at hand—get it now. The time will come when its quick relief will mean much to someone in your home.

Red Pepper is saving millions of painful hours. Let it save them for you and yours.

AUTO DAMAGE SUIT TRIED

Jury Finds for Plaintiff and Assesses Damages at $212.50 With Interest at 6 Per Cent

District court was adjourned Tuesday morning until next Monday morning, February 2nd. The jurors on the original panel were excused, but those drawn recently on the special venire were retained for completion of the term next week.

The jury in the case of F. H.
Brueske against Albert Burud, returned its verdict finding for the plaintiff, and assessing his damages in the sum of $212.50, with interest at the rate of 6 per cent from September 18, 1924. Mrs. Margaret
Herbert was foreman of the jury.

This case was an automobile damage suit, in which the plaintiff alleged that his car was damaged by the defendant to the extent of $500. The complaint set forth that the plaintiff's car was parked at the curb on one of the main streets of Crosby on the evening of September 18th, and was struck by the defendant's car and badly damaged.

The defendant, in his answer to this complaint, alleged that the plaintiff's car was parked at a wrong angle and that the tail light was not burning.
He asked damages to his car in the sum of $720.

John Sewell, charged with taking of varnish brushes from a store in Deerwood, and found guilty by a jur-in the present term of court, was sentenced to pay a fine of $25 and costs arising in both the municipal court of Crosby, where the case was first tried and in the district court. This case was an appeal from the municipa court.

E. Stierns was continued over this term by consent of both parties.

Discovery Offers
New Hope to Throat
Disease Sufferers

(By United Press)
Washington, Jan. 27.—A metal mirror that will eliminate most of the dangerous light and heat rays in treatment of throat diseases has been developed by the U. S. Bureau of Standards, it was announced today.

Ultra-violet rays, beneficial to diseased tissues when flashed into the throat in the new treatment, are reflected better by mirrors made of the sulphides of lead, molybdenum, iron and antimony, in the forms of the natural minerals, known as galena, molybdenite, pyrites and stibnite.
Two scientists of the bureau have determined.

Previous experiments had been almost entirely with the metals and their alloys, but the results just announced are expected to open new spheres of usefulness and efficiency to throat specialists.

The sulphide mirrors do not reflect much of the infra-red and visible rays which frequently cause burns to diseased or delicate tissues in the sunlight treatment. The mirrors are used in an instrument known as the laryngoscope. W. W. Coblentz and C. W. Hughes, physicists, conducted the experiments.

TO CONFINE EXPENDITURES FOR FISCAL YEAR TO THREE BILLION

(By United Press)
Washington, Jan. 27.—Summoned by President Coolidge to new efforts for economy, heads of the government today prepared for another drive to cut expenses. Their purpose, as given by the president last night in a speech to the semi-annual business meeting of the government, is to bring expenditures for the coming fiscal year within the $3,000,000,000 mark.

A smashing drive on surplus expenditures and consideration of means for increasing revenue are to be undertaken at the president's direction.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS

HEALTH MATTERS

(By United Press)
Minneapolis, Jan. 27.—The Minneapolis Board of Education met this afternoon to decide whether to bar children who are not immunized from mumps from entering classes in the public schools next month.

A. T. Ortquist, chairman of the board of education, called the meeting at 3:30 to hear the report of the committee which has probed the smallpox situation. The committee, it was understood, would recommend that children be required to exhibit successful vaccination marks before being permitted to enroll in classes.

Dr. L. M. Harrington, superintendent of health in Minneapolis, said he believed the board would act favorably on the recommendation.

St. Paul city officials and the University of Minnesota are awaiting the action of the Minneapolis board. Both are expected to follow the Minneapolis policy.

"The Clean Heart," or "The Cruelties of Life" is full of the human interest element. It depicts life as it is, delineating eccentricities, breathing and pulsating with a realism seldom attained upon the screen.

Percy Marmont is cast as the overworked novelist and editor who breaks down under the strain. Otis Harlan portrays the jovial, carefree philosopher of the road, who gives his life in an attempt to redeem the hero. Marguerite de la Motte is seen at her best as the cheerful little country lass who tries to bring sunshine into the lives of those with whom she comes in contact. There is a love element in the picture which presents the age-old theme from a new angle and which proves delightfully entertaining.

CHAMBER COMMERCE COMMITTEES NAMED

Various Standing Committees For The Year to be Announced Wednesday Evening

SEVERAL RE-APPOINTED

Fair Committee And Booster Committees Are Special Ones Named

The regular meeting of the Brainerd Chamber of Commerce will be held on Wednesday evening.

This meeting will be of special interest to all members of the Chamber, for the various standing committees for the coming year to be announced at that time.

The heads of several of these committees have already been decided upon, and are re-appointments of last year's chairmen. Among these are included A. L. Hoffman, chairman of the finance committee; E. J. Quinn, chairman of the house and social committee, and Henry I. Cohen, chairman of the membership committee. All committee heads and members of committees will be completed and announced at the meeting on Wednesday night.

Several special committees are to be named, also. One of these will be the fair committee, to look into the advisability of making a campaign to locate the county fair in Brainerd, as it was located at one time in the past.

Another special committee, and one which will have an important place in the work of the Chamber, will be the booster committee, whose duty it will be to assist home industries and to boost the use of home products and possibly a trade-at-home campaign. Such committees are proving very valuable in similar organizations where they have been tried out, and it is felt that there is a big work for such a body in Brainerd.

It is expected that the special committee appointed to look into the matter of bringing a harvester manufacturing company from Little Falls to Brainerd, will be ready to report on Wednesday evening. This committee has given its work much consideration and will have a definite report to make.

Other business will be brought up which should have the careful consideration of every member, and it is hoped that there will be a large turnout on Wednesday night.

DE MOLAY OPENS CHAPTER HERE

Advisory Council of the Order Met in Masonic Parlors to Receive And Act on Applications

40 APPLICATIONS RECEIVED

An Exceptionally Good Record, Showing Fathers and Sons Are Interested in Chapter

The advisory council of the order of De Molay met on Monday evening in the Masonic parlors to receive and act upon applications for membership of boys wishing to join as charter members.

Over forty applications from boys of eligible age were received, and favorably passed upon. The advisory council feels that this is an exceptionally good record, and take it as an indication that both fathers and sons are deeply interested in the movement to institute a chapter in Brainerd.

The next and last step necessary in the work of organization is to have a day set for instituting the local lodge and initiating the first class. J. E. Meyers, deputy grand counselor of Minnesota, who spoke to the fathers and sons a week ago in Brainerd, will decide upon the date of organization, which it is hoped will be in the very near future.

All necessary supplies and paraphernalia for active De Molay work have been received, and the boys as well as their parents and the advisory council are anxious to get started.

When the date has been definitely established for instituting the local chapter, arrangements will be made for bringing to Brainerd the degree team from one of the older chapters of the state to exemplify the initiatory work. Several teams have already signified their willingness to do this and to assist in any other way possible.

The idea of organizing a chapter of De Molay in Brainerd is receiving a great deal of encouragement, and the advisory council greatly appreciates the interest that is manifested by both the parents and the boys themselves. It was thought that if a class of approximately 35 boys could be secured as charter members, it would be a very good showing, but this number has been passed and another high record set, which quota was reached on Monday evening.

If the order of De Molay does for the boys of Brainerd what it has accomplished for the youth in other cities, the advisory council feels that it will have filled a real need locally and that a new realm has been opened for the young people of this city.

While the order of De Molay is being sponsored in Brainerd by the Royal Arch Masons, and is founded on Masonic principals, its membership is not limited to sons of Masons. On the contrary, any boy between the ages of 16 and 21 years, of good moral character, is eligible for membership, regardless of whether or not he has any Masonic connections.

The order teaches the boys manliness, self-reliance, reverence, courtesy, obedience to parents, and finally in them a love of patriotism and good citizenship. It is the experience in other towns where the order is flourishing that the principles of De Molay not only improve the boys who are members, but has a decidedly good effect on other boys with whom these members come in contact.

While the quota has been reached for the first class to be initiated, the advisory council will continue to receive names of boys who desire to join the order, and who will be acted upon for initiating in the classes that are to follow during the winter.

CITY COUNCIL SPECIAL SESSION

Considers the Proposed Building Ordinance for the City of Brainerd

CONTRACTOR EXAMINES SAME

As a Whole, the Ordinance Was Accepted, and Given Its First Reading

The city council met in special session on Monday evening to go over the proposed building ordinance for the city of Brainerd. Contractor, W. T. Carlson was called in to make recommendations and to otherwise offer constructive criticism on the proposed ordinance, which is a very lengthy document, constituting 18 pages of solid typewritten matter. A few minor changes were made in the draft, but as a whole the ordinance was accepted by the council and given its first reading. All members of the council were present except A. dermen Vitham and Quantom.

In the main, this building ordinance is not drafted with the intention of requiring fire-proof buildings within the fire limits, which constitutes the business section of the city, but rather to provide for fire-restrictive types of buildings which will prevent the spread of fires to other buildings or even within the building where it started, the idea being to confine any flames within a very small and limited area.

Possibly the most important function of this new ordinance is its requirement of building permits for the construction of any new buildings, not alone in the business section of the city, but in the residence portion as well. If the ordinance is passed, permits will be required, not only for the erection of new buildings, but also for any material changes in old buildings.

The erection of bill boards is also provided for in the ordinance, the council realizing that if such boards are not properly braced, especially where they flank sidewalks, they constitute a menace to pedestrians and to traffic in general.

The providing for permits for all new construction in the city will be of great assistance to the assessor in making up his tax list, a need which has been felt in Brainerd for many years.

The city engineer will pass on the fire hazard of any proposed new building, including the plumbing, wiring, heat, etc., before a permit will be allowed. A fee for this permit is set at $1 for construction in the residence section, and $1 per thousand for construction within the fire limits.

The fire limits of the business district are extended by the new ordinance, to include all of the block in which the post office, the Woodhead Motor Company and the Bethlehem Lutheran church are located, also the west half of the block occupied by the Standard Lumber Company and the Windsor hotel, the east half of the block on which the Palace hotel is located, and the south half of the block in which the Farmers Co-operative creamery is located.

The ordinance cuts out from the fire limits that portion of the railway right-of-way west of Third street, which formerly was included within the fire limits.

Schools, hospitals, theatres, hotels and other places of public assembly will, under the ordinance, require special construction that will give protection peculiar to such buildings, such as marked exits, fireproof curtains in theatres, fire escapes, fire doors, etc.

The ordinance is drafted with the intention of covering practically every building emergency, especially within the fire limits of the business district, which accounts for the length of the draft.

Much attention will be given to heating plants, plumbing, gas piping, electrical wiring, open flame heating and cooking apparatus, fireproof roofs, water connections, and many minor details which do not occur to the minds of the average individual, but which constitute a fire hazard unless properly constructed.

This ordinance was drafted by City Engineer R. T. Campbell and City Attorney D. H. Fullerton, along lines recommended by the National Board of Fire Underwriters. Before the ordinance was taken up by the city council, it was submitted to the state fire marshal's office for its recommendations and approval, and has the endorsement of the state fire inspection bureau.

The city council feels that the building ordinance will fill a long felt want, and will in the future confine the construction of new buildings to a class which will greatly reduce the fire hazard in the city, and which may ultimately lower fire insurance rates.

MANY PLAYERS LACK BRAINS—FARRELL

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Jan. 27.—All through the discussions of the Dolan-O'Connell baseball scandal, the light-hearted manner in which major league players looked upon the case was one of its most unusual features.

The players in general sympathize with Jimmy O'Connell and they feel that Commissioner Landis went to an uncalled-for extreme when he barred the young California outfielder for life because he had admitted offering a bribe to a Philadelphia shortstop. Dolan's case didn't arouse much sentiment among the players, because Dolan was not popular. O'Connell was hardly more than a kid, just breaking into the only business that he knew. Dolan was an old hand at the game who was principally the detective for John McGraw when he was not passing signals along from the coaching line.

Many of the players still insist that O'Connell was made the victim of a practical joke and that too much seriousness was attached to a situation that had nothing of the criminal nature in it.

One prominent major league manager said during the winter baseball meetings that Sand was a sap for playing the tattle-tale and telling Art Fletcher, manager of the Phils, that O'Connell had offered him $500 if he wouldn't bear down in one of the last games against the Giants. This manager said also that Fletcher, in passing the story along to higher officials, did not live up to the he-man reputation he made when he was playing shortstop with the Giants.

The intellectual rating of the average baseball player is not very high. It is surprising to learn in some cases that it is so very low. Take the case of Frank Frisch, captain of the Giants, a star player and a college graduate. When he was being examined by Commissioner Landis, after O'Connell had repeated in his presence that Frisch knew Sand had been approached, Frisch said that it must have been a joke and that lots of jokes and kiddings like that always happened on a pennant contending club.

Ross Young, Giant outfielder, who was mentioned by O'Connell as having had knowledge of the plot, testified that he had heard stories of fellows passing out money and things like that, but that he didn't have any knowledge of the O'Connell-Dolan case.

George Kelly, Giant first baseman, was also accused by O'Connell of having known that he made the offer to Sand and yet he went to California after the season closed and was ready to play on the same basketball team with the youngster who had accused him of being a part in baseball's greatest crime.

Sam Bohne, Cincinnati infielder, who is now the plaintiff in a suit against a publication that charged him with playing crooked baseball, also was signed to play on the same San Francisco basketball team with O'Connell, an outlaw.

After having had more experiences with such cases than the casual fan, it is no mystery what prompts John A. Heydler, president of the National League, to say that he can't imagine the workings of some ball players' intellects.

Commissioner Landis acted quickly and drastically when he tossed O'Connell and Dolan out of baseball. O'Connell admitted his part, but Dolan couldn't remember and Landis said that his faulty memory was a proof of guilt and was as good as a confession.

Frisch, Young and Kelly were absolved for reasons that prove Landis to be a jurist. O'Connell said they were guilty and they said they weren't. With nothing but the word of one against the words of the others, Landis threw out O'Connell's story as it pertained to the other three and accepted it as it pertained to himself and Dolan.

Perhaps the players, in recalling several incidents in the past, are partially right in holding that O'Connell "got the works" without any justification. Of course, Landis can't be held responsible for what happened in the past. If he had been on the job years ago there might have been only one scandal, because after the severity of his action in his first case it's a bet that there will not be any more joking or kidding on any ball club about throwing games or buying games.

The inconsistency of baseball, which is in no way to be blamed upon Landis, has been shown several times. Christy Mathewson, when he was manager of the Cincinnati Red, accused Hal Chase of being crooked, but Mathewson's story was not accepted and Chase continued to play baseball and was taken up by the New York Giants when all baseball should have been at least suspicious of him.

Then there was the Herzog-Benton case. Benton said that Herzog had offered him money to blow a game when they were members of the New York Giants and Herzog said that Benton had offered him the money. No one could straighten out the tangle and they both continued to play organized baseball. Benton is still with the Cincinnati Reds.

Phil Douglas gave Landis his first case and the Commissioner jumped on him with both feet. Douglas wrote a letter to another player, offering to go fishing for a compensation and he was canned out of baseball. The Douglas case, however, never would have been brought to the attention of Landis if it was not thought that a press association had all the facts of the case and was about to publish them.

GRIDIRON GAMES WILL DRAW
HUGE CROWDS WITH LARG-ER STADIA

CROWDS OF 125,000 MAY SOON BE WATCHING THE GAMES

Chicago, Jan. 27.—Football—not baseball, not golf—is destined to become the American national sport, and in the future, if stadia are built to accommodate them, crowds of 125,000 or more may be found watching the gridiron game. Maj. John L. Griffith, commissioner of the Western conference, believes.

"The greatest single drawing attraction in sports, amateur or professional, had been a world's championship prize fight, with a heavy-weight title in view," Major Griffith asserted.

"I suppose 90,000 is the correct estimate of the greatest crowd the boxers have ever drawn."

"The Stanford-California game on the Pacific coast last fall outdrew that by several thousand and the return of the American intercollegiate football code to Stanford and California has been comparatively recent."

Interest in football now extends beyond the colleges, their students and alumni, Major Griffith declared. This has come with the development of individual stars or combinations.

Baseball, the Big Ten commissioner believes, is experiencing a slump in popularity in colleges and has been abandoned by one collegiate conference, the Midwest.

In the new popularity of football and the intersectional interest aroused, Major Griffith sees a standardization of the game and the passing of the so-called "eastern game" or "western game." At present, he believes, the Midwest is producing the best brand of football.—Minneapolis Tribune.

St. Louis, Jan. 27.—Veterans again will be relied upon by Manager Geo. Sisler to place the St. Louis Americans in the championship running this year. Despite several trades this winter, the Browns' pilot has indicated there will be no substantial change in the team's battle front, with the possible exception of the battery staffs.

The biggest question mark in the Browns' makeup, in Sisler's opinion, is the pitching staff. Although the absence of Urban Shocker, the Browns' mainstay for several seasons, will be felt, Sisler believes that the acquisition of Joe Bush, Milton Gaston and Joe Giard from the Yankees in exchange for Shocker, has strengthened his twirling department.

Wingard, Dantorth, Davis, Grant and Pruett, all mound veterans, will be back, and in addition several youngsters, including George Blauholder, who had a good season with Tulsa, of the Western league, will be given trials. The veteran, Hank Severid again is expected to handle the bulk of the catching, with Leon Dixon of the St. Paul club, who ranked last year as one of the best receivers in the American association, added, Sisler said.

The infield and outfield are expected to remain intact, with Sisler again at first, McManus at second, Gerber at shortstop.

Much of the Browns' prospects depend upon the individual work of Manager Sisler, the effects of whose eye trouble were manifested last season when he was considerably handicapped.

Approximately forty-five men are expected to make the Browns' training trip this year. Because of a desire to meet major league clubs in the spring training trip, the Browns this year will train at Tarpon Springs, Fla., in the vicinity of several other major league clubs.—Minneapolis Tribune.

JOHN DAY, FORMER
GIANT OWNER, DIES

New York, Jan. 27.—John B. Day, owner of the original New York Giants, which entered the National league in 1883, died after suffering a stroke of paralysis.

He was a wealthy man in his day, but died in poverty. He lost a fortune in fighting the old brotherhood organization.

In recent years Day held a position at the Polo grounds as inspector of players and umpires and he drew $5 a day when he was able to go to the park. He was also on the payroll of the Giants for a small salary.

Next to Ruth

Rigney of Detroit ranked next to Babe Ruth in drawing bases on balls. The Tiger got to first 102 times on free tickets. He was the only American leaguer besides the Bamb to reach the century figure.

MANY PLAYERS LACK BRAINS—FARRELL

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Jan. 27.—All through the discussions of the Dolan-O'Connell baseball scandal, the light-hearted manner in which major league players looked upon the case was one of its most unusual features.

The players in general sympathize with Jimmy O'Connell and they feel that Commissioner Landis went to an uncalled-for extreme when he barred the young California outfielder for life because he had admitted offering a bribe to a Philadelphia shortstop. Dolan's case didn't arouse much sentiment among the players, because Dolan was not popular. O'Connell was hardly more than a kid, just breaking into the only business that he knew. Dolan was an old hand at the game who was principally the detective for John McGraw when he was not passing signals along from the coaching line.

Many of the players still insist that O'Connell was made the victim of a practical joke and that too much seriousness was attached to a situation that had nothing of the criminal nature in it.

One prominent major league manager said during the winter baseball meetings that Sand was a sap for playing the tattle-tale and telling Art Fletcher, manager of the Phils, that O'Connell had offered him $500 if he wouldn't bear down in one of the last games against the Giants. This manager said also that Fletcher, in passing the story along to higher officials, did not live up to the he-man reputation he made when he was playing shortstop with the Giants.

The intellectual rating of the average baseball player is not very high. It is surprising to learn in some cases that it is so very low. Take the case of Frank Frisch, captain of the Giants, a star player and a college graduate. When he was being examined by Commissioner Landis, after O'Connell had repeated in his presence that Frisch knew Sand had been approached, Frisch said that it must have been a joke and that lots of jokes and kiddings like that always happened on a pennant contending club.

Ross Young, Giant outfielder, who was mentioned by O'Connell as having had knowledge of the plot, testified that he had heard stories of fellows passing out money and things like that, but that he didn't have any knowledge of the O'Connell-Dolan case.

George Kelly, Giant first baseman, was also accused by O'Connell of having known that he made the offer to Sand and yet he went to California after the season closed and was ready to play on the same basketball team with the youngster who had accused him of being a part in baseball's greatest crime.

Sam Bohne, Cincinnati infielder, who is now the plaintiff in a suit against a publication that charged him with playing crooked baseball, also was signed to play on the same San Francisco basketball team with O'Connell, an outlaw.

After having had more experiences with such cases than the casual fan, it is no mystery what prompts John A. Heydler, president of the National League to say that he can't imagine the workings of some ball players' intellects.

Commissioner Landis acted quickly and drastically when he tossed O'Connell and Dolan out of baseball. O'Connell admitted his part, but Dolan couldn't remember and Landis said that his faulty memory was a proof of guilt and was as good as a confession.

With nothing but the word of one against the words of the others, Landis threw out O'Connell's story as it pertained to the other three and accepted it as it pertained to himself and Dolan.

Perhaps the players, in recalling several incidents in the past, are partially right in holding that O'Connell "got the works" without any justification.
